Three from one firm?

Four interested in Gale judgeship

Three valley attorneys have declared their candidacy for the post, and at least three others have said they are "not interested" in the vacancy created by Judge Wm. Gale's announced intention to resign from the Livermore-Pleasanton Municipal Court.

"I am seeking the appointment, and I will be a candidate for the office in the June elections," Burke Critchfield said in the strongest bid yet for that judicial post. The 45-year-old Livermore attorney recalled that "I applied for the vacancy left by Judge Schenone's resignation," some two years ago. Judge John A. Lewis gained that appointment, and his term also expires next year. However Critchfield made it clear "I will not file for Judge Lewis' post. I will run for the vacancy left by Judge Gale."

A registered Democrat, Critchfield was active in the Livermore Democratic Club "some years ago" and supported Floyd Mori in his bid for the 15th Assembly District post.

John Noonan, a partner in the same firm shared by Critchfield, said he too "has an interest in gaining the appointment," but admitted that "I haven't yet decided whether I will be a candidate" in next June's primary. Noonan said the cost of a campaign — "I would guess about $10,000" — might discourage him from running. In practice in the valley since 1971, Noonan is 42 years old. He has no party affiliation, he told The Times.

Mark Eaton is a third member of that same Livermore law firm who is "actively pursuing" the appointment. Eaton however declines to say he will also be a candidate in that election "until I know who the governor appoints. I may decide I don't want to run against that incumbent." Eaton added that "in no event would I be a candidate for the seat now held by Judge Lewis."

Eaton says he is a registered Democrat and cites his work with the Legal Aide Society of Alameda County among his public service affiliations.

Dave Harris, 40-year-old member of the law firm founded by Wm. Struthers, has already declared his interest in gaining the appointment to Judge Gale's post. Harris feels his "longtime activity in the Democratic Party" will work to his favor in gaining the attention of Governor Brown.

Ron Hyde, a Dublin resident and member of the Valley Community Services District board of directors, is one of those prepared to say flatly "I am not interested in a seat on the bench at this time." The 32-year-old Hyde feels "I'm too young for that job right now." (Hyde is often mentioned as a candidate for the First Supervisorial District post, in the event Supervisor John D. Murphy declines to seek a fifth term.)

All of those approached by The Times agree that "the next move is up to the governor." There is acknowledgement that "if Brown does make an appointment, then that person has a big edge as an incumbent in the June primary." But there is also the possibility that "knowing Governor Brown, he may decide to appoint some one from out of this valley ... a woman or a member of some minority from Oakland."

Should that happen, then the appointee would have to move into this Judicial District during that one year of service, and decide whether to then make a bid for the fulltime post, starting with that June primary, and winding up in the November runoff.

As John Corley — another Democrat who wants no part of the judicial bench — says: "This is going to be a honey of a battle, any way you look at it."

Early Childhood Education

Classes successful

PLEASANTON — More Pleasanton children will be able to take advantage of the Pleasanton school district's Early Childhood Education program as the result of progress exhibited by youngsters in the "pilot" classes at Fairlands School.

Pleasanton Elementary School District board members reviewed the State Dept. of Education-formulated program at a workshop Tuesday night attended by teachers, principals and district leaders.

ECE was enacted into law by the state legislature in 1972. Statewide, it was funded $25 million three years ago with emphasis on kindergarten through third grades. The appropriation was resultantly raised to $41 million and $60 million this past year, with 28 per cent of all children in K-3 involved.

The goal is to fund 60 per cent of all children in grades K-3, statewide, next year. Neil Sweeney, assistant superintendent for instructional services, said ECE places emphasis on individual instruction, diagnosis of learning problems and principles of learning. Classes at Fairlands, the first district school to undertake ECE, was funded $55,356 for the current year.

The district makes out a consolidated application which includes requests for Title I, Title II, Miller-Unruh reading and high school program funding. The amounts the districts have received for the current year are $25,634 (Title I), $22,000 (high school), $9,818 (Miller-Unruh), and $300 (Title II). Superintendent Bruce Newlin interjected that "ECE is the only program funded as a result of how successful a district is."

Selection of additional schools to take part in the ECE program is based on the number of children who fall below the 50th percentile in reading and math.

The district will test to determine the order of schools to next be included in ECE ... depending on how successful the incumbent school (Fairlands) is.

Based on testing last year, Alisal is next followed by Valley View and Vintage Hills. However, the criteria is the success of Fairlands students in the program and the availability of funds from the state.

The typical ECE program includes instruction in reading, language development, mathematics and multi-cultural plus instructional support by way of staff development, parent education and involvement, health and auxiliary services.

The Fairlands program boasts a sizable parent volunteer corps.

In a report by Dr. David Carlisle, district director of research and operations, to Newlin and board members, master planning for a three-stage development of ECE was outlined.

Carlisle said, on the basis of the most recent standardized test scores available, the district assigns a priority order to the schools in terms of per cent of educationally disadvantaged primary students (EDY pupils) who fall below the 50th percentile in reading, math or language arts.

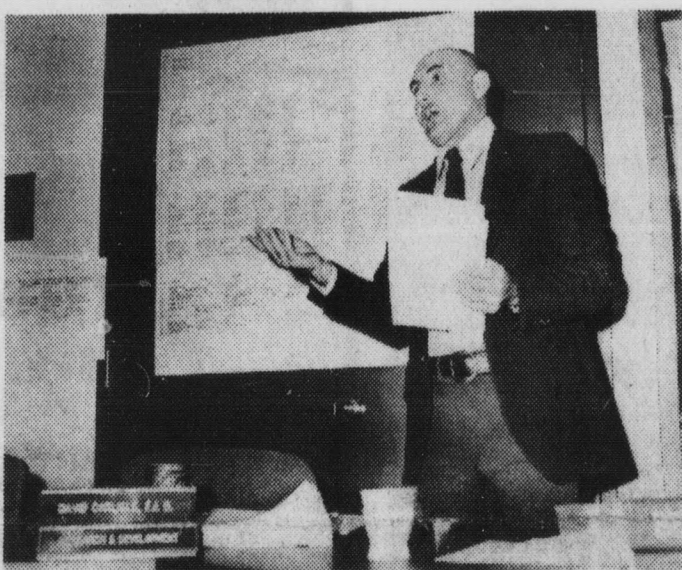

The priority list is then modified by a rather complicated formulae for expansion, according to Carlisle.

The latter is based upon the extent to which participating ECE schools (Fairlands) compare in statewide competition with other ECE schools.

Once the modified priority list has been determined, the district then must review the list and make a third modification to insure that the schools with the most educationally handicapped children (EDY) are in the majority.

Still, if funding is available for just one school with small enrollment, the district could choose to bypass the larger schools (such as Alisal and Valley View) for Vintage Hills, which has an enrollment just over 200.

Gene Vargas outlines ECE at Fairlands

12 year old hits grand slam, including mayor

PLEASANTON — A 13-year-old girl wrecked havoc along a six-block path of destruction yesterday after she took off in her parent's 1975 van and lost control, crashed into trees, shrubs, causing extensive damage to her parent's home and several vehicles — including Mayor Ed Kinney's car.

The girl, who police described as "very uncooperative," was booked at juvenile hall after the wild melee.

Police said the girl, who lives on Greenfield Drive, did major damage to property on Sandpiper, Greenfield, Crestline and Hummingbird. The mayor's car, parked in front of his house on Greenfield, suffered an undetermined amount of damage.

The girl was booked at juvenile hall on investigation of multiple counts of hit and run, and joyriding. Police said the girl would have been turned over to her parents, but they could not be reached.

No final damage estimate could be made for "quite some time," police said, due to the wide area covered in the ride.

Tuesday meeting

City to hear truck issue

PLEASANTON — The campaign to keep gravel trucks off this city's streets shifts to the city council on Tuesday where several scores of citizens are expected to make their complaint known.

Following up on recent revelations by The Times that Alameda County has apparently dropped its interest in developing El Charro Road as a full north-south access route for all the trucks, interest in this community now centers on "the ability of the city to force the county and the gravel industry into some kind of action."

The new plan of action came out of a meeting of the Industrial Development Committee of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce, and at which Vice Mayor Wm.

Herlihy and Bill Jamieson — who guided Citizens Against Garbage (CAGE) movement — were present.

"We need to find some way to force the issue," explained James Trimmingham following that session. Trimmingham, chairman of the Industrial Committee, had called the session "to find some positive way of working with the gravel interests" in resolving the quest for a new road linking Stanley Boulevard to Interstate 580.

(Supervisor John D. Murphy has since stated that he believes development of Isabel Avenue through to I-580 will be "quicker and cheaper" in providing a north-south public access. City of Livermore has been pressing for county help to extend Isabel as an answer to that community's need for a truck bypass route, relieving Holmes Street of its Vallecitos traffic.)

A key point in that special Tuesday night session with the Pleasanton city council could be the 1972 agreement worked out by the city and the gravel industry, and by which the gravel trucks were permitted temporary use of First Street and Sunol Boulevard for access to I-680.

That agreement runs out in October of 1977. There has been talk of "advising the gravel interests that truck access to First Street will also expire at that time, and then seeing what alternative ideas they come up with."

The "study session" with the city council on the gravel truck question is set for 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, at the Justice Court on Angela Street.

Beware!

Beware, oh children of Pleasanton and Dublin, of the fiendish monsters big and small that will lurk in the creaking, old "haunted house" on Rose Avenue come this Saturday. Be ever on the alert for these beastly and frightening monsters — for they live by night just to scare you out of your wits. So beware of the haunted manor at 287 Rose Ave. in Pleasanton ... unless you are stout of heart. The Twin Valley YMCA will present its sixth annual "Haunted House" starting this Saturday from 5 to 9 p.m. Hours on Sunday will be 2 to 9 p.m. and 5:30 to 9 on Sunday and Monday through Friday of next week. Admission is 75 cents — and beware the creatures that stalk at night!

MTC, district at odds

BART, bus night service compatible?

OAKLAND — That $1.6 million allocated the Bay Area Rapid Transit District Wednesday for extended evening rail and bus service may not turn out to be the boon intended by the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

According to BART public information officer Dave Kelsey, only $150,000 has been set aside for "experimental" evening bus runs, while the district is "committed" to expanding evening rail service.

He also claims an amendment to the MTC resolution granting state disbursement of the money directs BART to report to the MTC on the bus service only.

Not by a long shot, the MTC replies.

MTC Deputy Executive Director Paul Bay told The Times the 90 day report is to cover "the total system," and that in their discussions, BART "never brought up, never explained" any proposition to allocate $150,000 only for an "experimental" evening bus service.

Matt Gage, MTC Assistant Director in charge of the Transportation Development Act (TDA) funds that will allow BART to operate at night from Nov. 28 through June 30, 1976, said: "MTC was very explicit that they had no intention of telling BART what or how to operate ... They (BART) will have to answer."

MTC spokesman Sy Moubert was emphatic, however, when he said it was the intention of the commission that evening bus service work hand in hand with night rail runs.

No one at MTC had heard of the $150,000 figure, he added.

HALF A LOAF? Picking through BART and MTC proceedings of the past two weeks one also is faced with the inescapable conclusion that the "hinterlands" of the BART district (East Contra Costa County and the valley) may some day next spring be offered the MTC mandated evening buses, but no day bus service.

BART director Elmer Cooper's Oct. 9 resolution extending bus service to the "hinterlands" not served by rail directs general manager Frank Herringer to keep that service within the budgeted $2 million.

(The directors did not know at that time the MTC would grant the $1.6 million.)

Herringer admitted at that meeting that some lines would be curtailed or cut back in early December, and accepted the board's directive to make further cuts if it became apparent day bus service would exceed $2 million.

If it is discovered in, say, April, that cutting and trimming bus service still hasn't the $2 million budget, it will, by the conditions of Cooper's motion, have to go.

Meanwhile, the MTC's evening mandated bus service may still be in effect.

"That's a hell of a question," a BART spokesman said when confronted with the contradiction. "You guys are really paranoid out there."

Zone 7 directors

Terms expire next year

The terms of three members of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District Zone 7 Board of Directors expire in 1976.

Chairman David Harris, Vice chairman Robert Becker, and member Harlan Zoder each face reelection. Voting on Zone 7 memberships will take place June 8, 1976. The exact dates for taking out and filing candidacy papers have not yet been determined.

None of the incumbents have reached a decision about running for reelection. Chairman Harris said such a decision was "premature" but indicated his decision would be based on how much can be accomplished between now and the filing deadline.

Vice chairman Becker confessed he hadn't given a thought to reelection. He will begin considering his decision "in the near future."

Director Zoder said it was too early to reach a decision. "If you get into it too soon, then you have to begin thinking about things other than Zone 7. I'd like to concentrate on Zone 7 at this time."

As yet no other candidates have announced intentions to challenge the incumbents for seats on the board.

Jaycees to hold costume contest

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Jaycees will kick off their House of Horrors with a Halloween costume contest for children starting at 2 p.m. Saturday at The Barn on Pacific Avenue (behind the Police Administration Building).

Prizes will be awarded for the best costume and the most original costume.

Outdoor Education program future open to question

PLEASANTON — The participation of fifth graders district-wide in the Outdoor Education program remains open to question today following a Pleasanton Elementary School District board workshop Tuesday.

Neil Sweeney, assistant superintendent for instructional services, said the board could consider continuing Outdoor Education as a district-wide program or make it local (individual school) option.

Outdoor Ed, according to Sweeney, evolved out of teacher interest and particular curriculum needs at the school. Outdoor Education gives children a chance for greater social opportunities," Sweeney commented.

Sweeney says one major advantage of involving all fifth graders would be to provide for an integrated curriculum district-wide.

One of the drawbacks, he states, is that not all teachers feel comfortable with the program. Some believe it has a detrimental effect.

The case of the fifth grade classes at Harvest Park, last year, was noted.

Alisal and Valley View have been the pioneer schools in Outdoor Education. Classes at the schools go to camp at Mount Hermon in the Santa Cruz Mountains for one week in the month of May. Supervision and instruction are provided by district teachers and a resident naturalist.

The district estimates it would cost $27,000 to pickup the entire program, $21,000 of which would be for tuition.

Sweeney said $3,900 has been budgeted for the program this year, to cover busing and paying the resident naturalist as well as substitute time (for teachers who accompany the children to Mt. Hermon).

At present, four sections at Alisal, six at Valley View, four each at Fairlands and Harvest Park and 2½ sections at Walnut Grove are eligible for Outdoor Education. Each section has 28 to 30 students.

While children have the option of participating, it was indicated Tuesday almost 90 per cent of the fifth grade students take part. Alisal and Valley View have said they want to be in the program again.

Del Warren, teaching vice principal at Alisal, and one of the organizers of the district program, said most districts he had checked last year had an optional program.

Jim Kenrick, a district teacher, told those present Outdoor Education is an "integrated part of the Murray School District curriculum and an important part. We're (teachers) more than willing to put in time on Outdoor Ed. but we need district backing." Kenrick said backing should take the form of the district setting-up sites and training counselors.

Kenrick added he felt if the district thought it was a good program they should make a firm commitment to it.

Sweeney said later, "I think if you said it was going to be a district-wide program there would be less interest from teachers."

Warren felt Outdoor Education "almost has to have teachers in it who WANT to be in it ... because of the added time involved."

Gene Vargas, principal at Fairlands School, speaking on gathering tuition monies, said "I don't know what we'd do if the program were mandatory as I'm not sure how we'd get the money." Vargas had previously mentioned the aid of PTA members in staging fund-raisers for tuition. Warren, in a concluding remark, said time is of the essence as regards to reserving space at the camp. He said a tentative reservation for a four-week period at Mt. Hermon has been made.

Santa Rita clinic cited Tots tested

The Alameda County Health Care Services Agency has received an award from the National Association of Counties for advances in the operation of a clinic at Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center, Pleasanton.

The Health Care Agency has made numerous improvements in the medical and dental care of Alameda County inmates and detainees since 1970.

J. K. Waller, director of jail health care programs, cited some improvements: daily sick call for all inmates, improved medical control system, and emphasis on treatment of inmates by private physicians.

Tots tested

The Pleasanton Junior Women's Club is currently holding its annual Eye and Ear Clinic for screening preschoolers ages three to five. This year, Juniors are traveling to various Nursery Schools throughout the city and holding their clinic in the schools. There will be one clinic open to the public at the Veterans Hall on Nov. 6 from 9 a.m. until noon. For further information, call Pat Fechner, 846-0482. Sue Broderick, Junior member, is shown testing the hearing of Erik Kruger of Rtepping Preschool.

Bay Area environment

TV explores year 2000 scene

Now here's a frightening thought — what would the Bay Area be like 25 years from now in the year 2000 if nothing was done about the problems of new food sources, land use, air and water pollution, education, housing, crime, energy and citizen participation in government?

KPIX (Channel 5) Eyewitness News will broadcast a dramatization of a news program in the year 2000 showing what could happen if nothing was done to correct the problems of 1975. The one-hour special program is scheduled for 10 p.m. Monday.

The broadcast is the first of an eight-part series primarily organized by the California Council for the Humanities in Public Policy, the League of Women Voters of the Bay Area, and KPIX.

Following the first program, viewers will be asked to vote on those issues that will affect the future and concern them the most. The results of the votes will be the subject of three special one-hour programs in January.

The January broadcasts will explore the issues and long range value questions as well as present options for action that should be taken now.

On the Thursday following each of the January issue programs, the League of Women Voters, working through its local affiliates in the Bay Area, will hold large public discussion meetings in more than 20 locations.

The sites have not yet been designated but those interested in participating should call 543-7000 and leave their name and address.

Also being arranged are "future's parties" in which volunteers set up small home meetings of neighbors to view Monday night's program and discuss the options presented. Persons interested in organizing a "future's party" should call 543-7000 for more information.

Monday night viewers may fill out ballots checking off those issues that most concern them or may mail in a card or letter to "We the People," P.O. Box 500, San Francisco, 94101.

The ballots will be published by KPIX in "The TV Guide" and also available at all Kentucky Fried Chicken outlets.

Listed on the ballots as issues to be checked are: food; environment; jobs and economy; transportation; sense of community; crime and justice; education; public participation in government; ethics and religion; housing; energy, and human rights. Space will be provided to list other concerns.

Ballots, cards, and letters should be mailed by Nov. 12.

The large League meetings on Thursdays in January will feature experts in the various issues to be explored (provided by the California Council) and scholars in the humanities will serve as resource people.

The experts, humanists and citizens all will be able to exchange views and explore in greater depth the alternatives presented on the television programs.

Representatives from each of the discussion meetings will meet at a synthesis meeting for final discussion of a workable option that could contribute to the long term solution of one of the problems.

The citizen participation/media project's umbrella sponsor is "We the People: Bay Area 2000," and includes a number of Bay Area groups representing a wide cross-section of business, labor and civic interests and individuals.

The eight programs to be broadcast will be "Eyewitness News: Year 2000" on Oct. 27 from 10 to 11 p.m. (it is the only program with a specific date and time); a repeat of the program in January as well as three separate broadcasts on "We the People: Issue One, Issue Two, and Issue Three;" "We the People: Consensus/Vote," sometime in March; "We the People:

Future Action" during April, and "We the People: Next Quarter Century," scheduled during July.

On sports

The game's the thing

Mike Zampa

Since the Western Basketball Association moved out here a year ago people (mostly our staff members) have asked why so many words are spent on a subject so few care about.

After all, one of the keys to a successful story is mass appeal. And if there's one thing they never accused the Tri-Valley Warriors of, it's appeal. Once curiosity seekers were satisfied early last season, the Pleasanton team lost its audience.

The Warriors literally couldn't give seats away. They tried and the crowds still never surpassed the size of a college football roster. And we're speaking of the 1975 restricted travel roster.

The team was a business bust. Ambitiously it rented the pavillion at the Fairgrounds for home games, and opened a second-story office on Pleasanton's Main St. It vacated both before the year ended. And the Warriors were the championship team of the league.

So why all the articles and comments for a white elephant, geared to a readership that wouldn't fill the men's room, much less a public auditorium?

Perhaps it was a display of affection for a bunch of Don Quixote's in sneakers, who tried to tackle too much. For four years WBA madmen have attempted to root semi-pro basketball in the Bay Area. Somebody's got to care for them because they're like goldfish bucking the tide.

With the coast-to-coast bulge of the National Basketball Association, and then fleshing-out by the ABA, local basketball beyond the school level has taken it on the chin. Since television beams the best basketball into the living room every week, there's no urgency to see a game live.

This has forced club and AAU basketball into the background. Teams have slipped from public view, or even vanished.

You'd think that would be reason enough to scrap the WBA. Making matters worse is the fact that all WBA towns are within driving distance of the Oakland Coliseum and the Golden State Warriors.

Would you pass up the NBA champions to watch four former collegians and a tall gas station attendant?

Regardless, WBA people feel there should be a niche for that latter kind of team. They've rehired their former commissioner, Barney DeBisschop, and he's a long-time booster of club basketball. Barney used to play it. After that, he ran the AAU basketball program.

If the WBA's going to come back again, Barney says, it's going to be in a low key atmosphere. The players will be there to play, he says, not just to pick up a quick 25 bucks. There'll be no more talk about affiliating with the two professional leagues as a minor league outlet. At least for now.

It's one thing to be naive, another to cross the Pacific in a Dixie Cup.

All last year the WBA pushed plans to expand. It would pay players and become a nurturing plot for the NBA. Unfortunately it never took the time to perfect the product on the court. The league wound up broke, and its backers disgusted. One suggested coming back this season under an assumed title to duck mounting debts.

To everyone's credit, the proposal was rejected. The WBA will satisfy its creditors, DeBisschop says. It will also concentrate on the playing of games if it cranks up for another season. Wide-eyed dreamers will be discouraged.

They're talking about playing for enjoyment in the WBA this year. If that sounds like a Disney script, well at least it's unique. In sports they have ulterior motives for everything now days. Sponsors can purchase a sure tax write-off in the WBA, but it amounts to only a couple of thousand dollars. A businessman wouldn't open his check book for that amount. If you buy into this financial morass, you gotta love the game.

That's what it's going to require to keep the WBA afloat. Money? There's none. Prestige? Hell, high schools draw bigger crowds.

This is for the guys who remember the Olympic Club team, and the Phillips Oilers. The ones who believe a kid should play even if he's not 6-9 and capable of jumping out of the Astrodome.

If the guys who bankroll the WBA will stop trying to make Wilt Chamberlain out of a Mickey Rooney frame, and get back to the idea that basketball is worth promoting locally, they might get support.

They swayed a few of us last season with big talk and a fast shuffle. It wasn't long, however, before the rush for the exits began.

A few dedicated types have kept the WBA functioning for five years now. Most were basketball players of wide-ranging repute. They didn't want to quit playing after college. When they founded the WBA they figured a lot of other young players felt the same way. Their league would be the vehicle for kids who felt kinship to the game, but weren't ticketed for professional stardom.

Last season the original intent of the semi-pro league was camouflaged by some fantasyland businessmen. Their Pollyanna ideas chased DeBisschop to cover. This season the WBA is left with those same guys who started the league. No crazy schemes, no spurious promoting. Just a few friends of basketball.

If there's anything the WBA needs, it's friends.

Mats' defense a test for MV

Most of the talk centers around offense at Granada High School, and it's understandable. The Matadors have fine running backs and two evenly matched quarterbacks and can match yardage with most teams in the Bay Area.

But with half the season gone it becomes apparent that they're playing defense at Granada, maybe well enough to win an EBAL championship.

The Matadors will unleash it against Monte Vista tomorrow in Livermore at 1 p.m. The Mats held potentially dangerous Dublin to eight points last week, while the Mustangs were shut out by Livermore.

There's little encouragement to be found in Alamo.

Granada may have one of the league's best linebacking tandems with senior Tim Duke, and sophomore Kevin Gosney. Last week they combined for 25 tackles. Gosney had 11 unassisted. Duke has hauled in three interceptions this season.

Up front, interior linemen Ron Freeman and Steve Carpenter had 14 more stops last week.

All of that talent may be too much for the Mustangs, who have sputtered offensively this season.

Meanwhile, Granada's offense has cranked into gear with tailback Steve Jaeger rushing for 122 yards last week. He has gained more than 400 yards in five games this season.

The Matadors also got a fine game out of quarterback John Walden last week, the senior gaining 58 yards on 10 option carries. He has been sharing playing time with sophomore Steve Robison.

Two-medal circus for Diane

Pleasanton will provide a heroine's welcome for American gymnast Diane Dunbar when she arrives at San Francisco Airport Monday night with two medals earned at the Pan American Games in Mexico City.

Allied Broker's Picadilly Bus will carry community officials, including mayor Ed Kinney, and Diane's high school principal Don Landers, plus the Foothill High School band, to the welcoming ceremony.

Word is still forthcoming on her time of arrival.

Diane and her American teammates captured the gold medal for gymnastics at the Pan Am Games. Diane earned a bronze medal for her third place individual finish in the bars.

The bouncy veteran of international competition placed fifth in the all around category, 1.35 points behind winner Ann Carr of Philadelphia.

Though she returns with two medals, there were notes of disappointment coming out of Mexico City following her final performance Wednesday night.

The pro-Latin audience booed through Diane's entire routine, a reaction to the judging of a Cuban girl who performed previously.

American coach Dale Flancis instructed Diane to wait until the catcalls subsided, but Pan Am officials insisted she begin her performance.

The shouting never did die down.

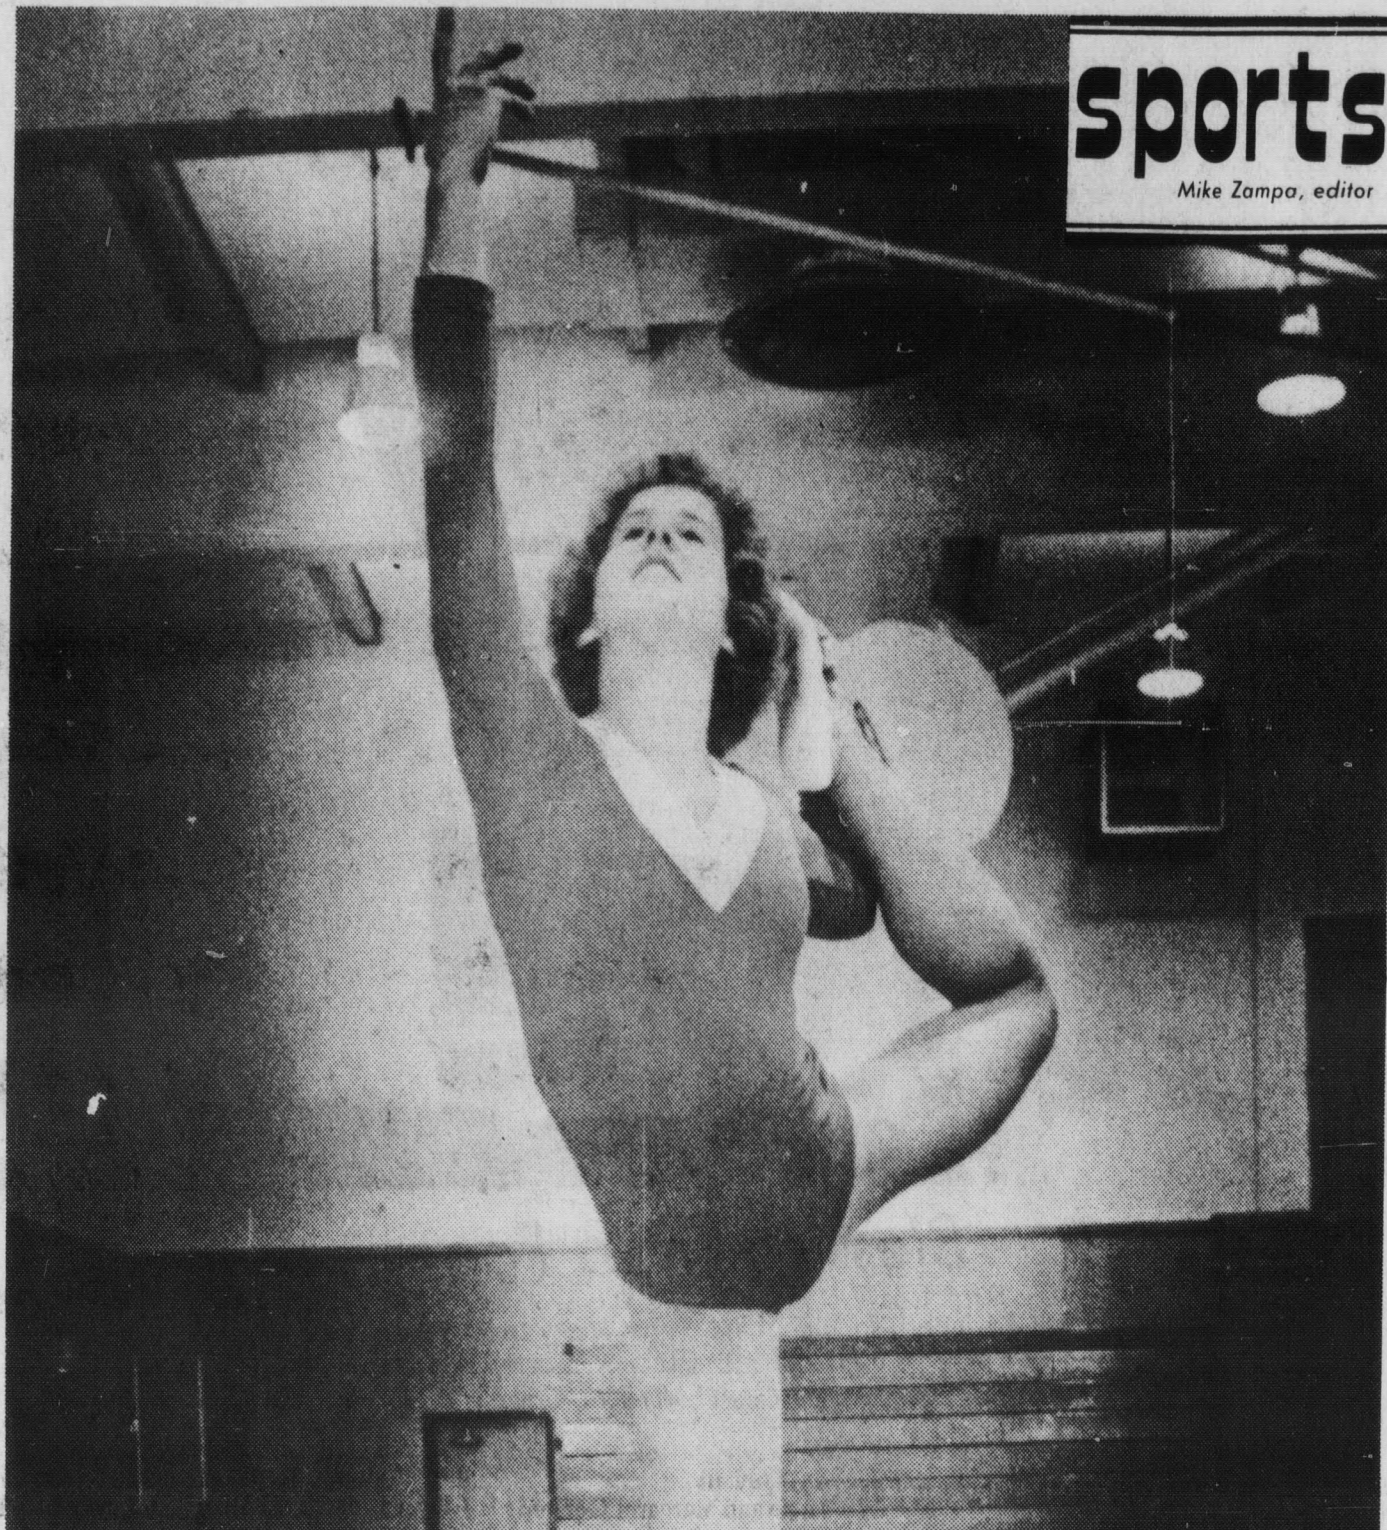

Young Diane appeared in strong contention for a gold medal in floor exercise until a Pan Am Games rule knocked her out of competition.

Heading into the finals, Diane was just .1 point out of first place for the event. She was in fourth place, however, and rules allow only three competitors from one nation to reach the finals. American domination of the Pan Am games precipitated the limitation.

Recurring back problems hampered Diane's performance at The Games, producing a dismal effort in vaulting, normally one of her strong suits.

"All of this has just made her more determined to come back and work on her routine and get ready for the Olympics," said a family spokesman who talked to Diane by phone yesterday.

Rival Cowboys, Dons collide

There's a tacit understanding in the EBAL that natural rivals play the final night of football season. Natural rivalry in this case encompassing geographic proximity.

But that doesn't accommodate the nastiest feud in the Bay Area, the one involving Amador Valley High and Livermore. Here it is the halfway point in the season, and these two old nemeses are meeting tonight in Pleasanton.

Backroom agreements notwithstanding, this is the grudge match for both schools. "It's still the big one for the kids," as Cowboy coach Ron Berg says.

"That's the way I look at it too," confirms Amador coach Fred Wood. "Our players our up after winning last week, and they're up just because this is Livermore."

For Berg, it is his first Livermore-Amador game as head coach. And indeed, it is big. Both of these teams, after dismal non-league schedules, are contenders for the EBAL championship. Amador won its opener over San Ramon last week, 14-12. Livermore whipped Monte Vista, 21-0.

Though it's Berg's first shot at the Dons as boss, he's survived enough Amador-Livermore wars to know that a coach must be cautious in his thoughts.

"They're a good football team," he says of the Dons, "and our kids can't underestimate them. They've got a heluva backfield."

"They're awesome," Wood says of the Cowboys with due respect. "They must be the biggest team in the league, and I don't know how well our players will compare."

Amador has its running game at full strength, with Mike Mays, Ken Carney and Mike Goodison alternating in the wishbone. Ron Worley is the fullback. Goodison makes his second appearance this season after a bout with mononucleosis. He may still have traces of rust, but the Cowboys are concerned.

"He didn't have that much experience last year and he was still all-EBAL," Berg points out.

Amador will run into perhaps the strongest defensive line in the league tonight. Livermore has allowed just six points in its last two football games. Wade Andrade, 265, Bob Bradley, 200, Pete Howard, 195, Gary Tennyson, 210, and Dale Fahnhorst, 160, have blunted enemy ball carriers inside. They've made some passing quarterbacks squirm too.

"There's no question the defense has been a key for us," Berg says. "It has been improving all along. But it doesn't seem to me we have an edge. Everyone is picking Amador over us. They were given honorable mention in the polls. Not us. 'I don't know how we could be a favorite. They're coming off a win over San Ramon, and you know San Ramon has never had a bad football team. So that means Amador has got to be pretty good.'"

The Cowboy attack will feature quarterback Rich Palmer, a fine passer, and Livermore's leading rusher from the option.

Behind Palmer will be mini-backs Vince Farfan and Pat Powles.

Chabot can't relax vs. winless Eagles

Any loss in the last month of football season will probably knock Chabot College out of title contention in the Golden Gate Conference.

Four teams are within one-half game of the Gladiators, so it is no time to feel smug with a share of first place.

There's liable to be a feeling of contentment tonight, however, when Chabot invades Oakland to play Laney College at 7:30. The Eagles are winless in five games this year, including three conference contests. The Gladiators, by contrast, are 3-1 and 5-1. How can they get worked up over a milk run?

That's just what has Chabot coach Terry Cagaanan worked up.

"It's going to be a real test for us psychologically," Cagaanan says. "We've got to play a real intense game, and not take anything for granted."

"The guys realize the value of this game. If we were undefeated they might look at it another way. But we're not. We've got to win the rest of our games and not worry about anybody else."

The 10th ranked Gladiators have the physical makeup to do just that. Quarterback Chuck Severson has played three straight games now, and has become the fifth leading passer in the conference with 40 completions in 85 attempts. He threw only one interception last week after suffering seven in his first two games as a regular.

Severson shared Northern California player of the week honors with his leading receiver Tom Ferguson, who now has a wide lead in the GGC pass catching race. Ferguson has hauled in 36 throws this season, nine more than runner-up Wally Yuhre of Diablo Valley.

He has been sensational since being shifted from the wingback position last season.

"That's why we moved him outside," Cagaanan said. "And he is going to get better before he's through. A lot of teams are giving him double coverage, but if you want to stop Tom, you better get a net."

Chabot's top rusher, Curt Bledsoe, is now sixth in the conference with 346 yards in six ball games.

Freshman Steve Duncan of Dublin moved into a two-way tie for fifth place in scoring with 30 points. Steve has kicked six field goals in nine attempts, and added 12 extra points.

Chabot's defense, second best in the conference, faces a Laney offense that is rated the worst in the league. The Gladiators have been begrudging yards at a 246.0 clip per game. Laney averages just 165.6 on offense, however.

"They've still got a fine team," Cagaanan said. "They've got two good runners, and good outside receivers, and they've been improving."

Records fall in x-country

Wendy Behrbaum once again broke the record for her home Amador Valley High School cross-country course in EBAL action yesterday.

Behrbaum stepped off the 1 1/2 mile course in 8:24, breaking the mark she set last week, in a race the Donnas had already won via a forfeit over the San Ramon Wolves.

Greg Novacek of AV and the Wolves' Nelson Snook tied for first and a record in the two-mile frost-soph contest, won by the Donns, 25 1/2-29 1/2.

The clocking beat the previous best of 10:19 set by Bruce Rogers last season.

San Ramon's Tim Galvin won the varsity race.

Battered Dublin still up and fighting

Injuries have played havoc with Dublin High School's football team this season, but the defending East Bay Athletic League champions have not lost heart, according to head coach Wayne Re.

"Our guys haven't given up. They've never quit," said Re.

The Gaels play host San Ramon tonight. Both teams lost their EBAL openers last week but Re has not lost heart.

"We showed a lot of improvement against Granada last week," he said. "We actually outgained them and our one score came on a sustained drive. In the last quarter we drove from our 10 to the Granada 15 but were unable to punch it in."

Re looks on the San Ramon contest as a tough one. "Listen, any team coached by Fred Houston is a good one," he emphasized. "We expect they will pass a lot and use Bowles (the Wolves' ace running back) a lot, too."

Re said Jerry Puertas will probably start at fullback for the Gaels tonight in place of Jim Bouleware. "Bouleware has some minor injuries and we kept him out of contact twice this week. However, he will still see some action against San Ramon."

Junior Sean Mays will start at quarterback and Jon

Batchlor will man the tailback position. Re has not made a decision as to who will start at the flanker spot. Several players are in contention for the starting berth.

Injuries have especially hurt the Gaels on defense. Dublin lost defensive tackle Mike Batchlor for the season in the Granada game. The 6-foot-3, 185-pounder's place will be taken by either Bob Klien, Curt Whitaker or Jeff Hellinga. "All three of these players will see plenty of action," Re said.

Key defensive players for the Gaels this week should be tackle nose guard Ken Dugan.

Both players made the All-EBAL second team last season. Sperber, a huge 275-pounder, is described by Re as "much quicker this season. He is a strong candidate for first-team all-league this season."

Hockey Mites win, 5-4

The Tri-Valley Minor Hockey Club Mites scored a 5-4 victory over Santa Rosa last weekend, paced by the scoring of Kevin Medeiros.

Brian Bach notched his first of the year. Greg Liggins, Brian Schaeffer and Dave Perona had assists.

The Squirts dropped a 6-1 decision to Santa Rosa with Mike Merrick accounting for the lone goal. Defenseman Keith Medeiros played well.

The Pee Wees tied Berkeley, 3-3, as Shawn Picotte scored twice, and Sonny Delk, once. Ron Fritsch, Bryan Gonzales and Kenny Stevens earned assists. Goalie Phillip Patrick stopped 23 shots on goal. Steve Mathews starred defensively.

Coleman Gross and Bob Foster fired goals for the Bantam A's, but they dropped a 3-2 decision to Belmont. Pertti Kaksonen and Craig Bates had the assists. Greg Hickey was strong in the nets, with 22 saves. Craig Collin was outstanding defenseman.

In Midget AA competition, Tri-Valley clobbered Berkeley, 8-3. Dave Nelson had a goal and three assists to lead the winners. Other goals went to Jay McMahon, Gary LaVallee, Joey Picotte, Bill Wenik, Bart Miller and Doug Schoeffler. Goalie Doug Bivins earned a rare assist. He also had 11 saves. LaVallee, Doug Johnson and Lenny Prietas also had assists.

San Ramon has been tough defensively, of late. The Wolves held Amador to 66 yards passing last Friday and outgained the Dons.

Bowles will be the key to the Wolf offense. The 210-pound fullback senior fullback ran for 101 yards against Amador, but 59 of those came on a touchdown burst in the first quarter.

The battle between the Gael defense, led by Sperber and Dugan, and Bowles, using his awesome power, should be the key to the outcome of the contest. The losing team will destroy just about any hope it has of winning the league crown and entering the North Coast Section playoffs.

The VCSD as a local government

The valley's populace faces a busy round of elections in the next several months, decisions that will do much to determine the direction and the flavor of these communities. No one of these ballot tests is more important than that which will name three members to the Valley Community Services District board of directors.

Whether in the context of community government, or in the broader sense of "valley regionalism," the VCSD has had particular difficulty in firming up its own identity. At times the "city council" for Dublin's 15,000 residents, the VCSD must also spread parts of its operations south across the freeway into Pleasanton, and north across the county line into San Ramon country.

Provider of recreation, garbage collection and fire protection services within Dublin, the VCSD at the same time must supply sewer service to an area twice that size. If the public is thereby confused as to "just what is the VCSD, anyway?" the members of that board are at times equally uncertain.

There can be no question that "the valley" and its several parts are headed for some kind of regional control. State law will push us into this, even if local verve is lacking.

But the Valley Community Services District will not be the leader or even the catalyst for that regionalism, any more than the city councils of Livermore or Pleasanton, acting in their separate roles. Those respective city boards seem to accept that limitation; the VCSD panel has yet to be convinced.

The one area which suffers most from these VCSD dreams of greater grandeur is Dublin itself. Far from the unincorporated sprawl of its beginnings, Dublin today is a community in every sense of that word. It has industry, commerce and the sense of "home town pride" attributed to any other suburban center. What Dublin lacks is the freedom to control its own destiny, and the government to provide constant leadership.

The VCSD board of directors — by law and tradition — is the one body capable of giving Dublin that kind of direction. It remains only for the individual members of that board to decide for themselves how, and how much, leadership should be provided.

And that is the criteria all Dublinites might consider as they approach that Nov. 4 election for three new members on the VCSD board.

White collar mob

A growing menace to all levels of society, including both our public and private institutions, is the "white collar criminal," the person who uses a position of trust for illegal or morally suspect gains.

Some knowingly misappropriate funds while others make attempts to stay just within the bounds of the law or directions set down for them by an institution.

We have in mind two cases, one involving a Fremont Unified School District finance officer whose procedures have caused the district to receive considerable "ink" in recent months. The flap has now spread to the former superintendent of the district and into the County Dept. of Education offices.

The other concerns recent revelations by a Times staff writer on the spending of Bay Area Rapid Transit District directors, specifically the president and vice-president of the board, Richard Clark and Elmer Cooper.

In actuality, there's a third area that deserves closer scrutiny by the public — the "consultant" or "consultant services" firm.

Such individuals or firms differ from the above cases in that they state "services" they can provide for a city or agency and the cost. It is up to the city or agency to decide whether the end result merits the expenditure. Thus, there is no question of illegality here...though I believe that in some instances such firms or individuals are virtually holding the city up and/or don't deliver as complete a set of data as advertised.

Further, this writer contends that cities and other public agencies such as school districts and public works panels should decrease their dependence on "consultant" firms...and rely on expertise on the staff or in the community.

The favorite contemporary practice finds a retired business executive or legislator obtaining employment with a firm he may have once been beholden to...almost always at an exorbitant fee.

In some cases these persons are looked upon (by the employer) as a direct link back to a particular legislative group. In short, they are the "influence peddlers" of the day.

But, back to what this writer considers an appalling situation in existence within the BART board.

If the expense account figures and other data meticulously compiled by a Times staff writer and reporters of other newspapers are correct, the amounts run up by these two and the practices alleged are nothing short of misappropriation of funds and, thus, malfeasance in office.

However, the problem is actually tied to the person or persons who approves such expenditures (Cooper billed the district for a $4,000 trip to Nice, France where there was a "transit meeting" with sidetrips to London, Paris, Copenhagen and Amsterdam). And the latter is but one of dozens of what this writer believes are questionable expenses. Questionable in light of the fact the district is in woeful condition financially and has been for many years.

Cooper's expense account for one particular month shows check stubs from 32 restaurants, most of them in San Francisco.

The San Francisco director, who seemingly has little interest in the district continuing feeder bus service to this valley, listed over $19,000 on his district expense account for the first nine months of this year.

Clark, president of the board and from Albany, showed an expense account of $8,000 for the same time period.

The expenses are in addition to Clark's BART salary of $5,000 a year (as board president) and Cooper's $3,000 a year (as board vice-president). Both also receive $50 for each board meeting and can collect up to $250 a month in meeting pay.

Do you think we in the valley are getting our money's worth from the services of these gentlemen?

Or do you think it's time we brought the gravy train to a screeching halt!

square shouldered Oakland Raider lineman who bloodied himself on the well mined political battlefields of Fremont some years ago

Speaking of his multitude of supporters one must not forget Murphy's legion of foes who are just as vocal, if not as powerful, as those who back him.

Valerie Raymond is currently leading the dissenting contingent with Don Miller lurking in the background and leaking "confidential" information which could earn him a slander suit if Murphy could ever prove his accuser had made some of his preposterous accusations.

Miller is not above sitting with a group of friends he knows will pass on his words and start his blasphemy of Murphy with the words, "Of course I can't prove it, but I know for a fact..." Valerie Raymond approaches the subject in a more direct manner. She simply maintains that the incumbent is not a good supervisor, does not work at his job full time and is not available to the general public.

She disagrees with him on a variety of other subjects, but her general attack is on the previously mentioned three points.

Of course the subject of Murphy versus Miller is a two way street. The one time mayor of Livermore and implacable no growth advocate, who would never aspire to higher office than the city council there because it would interfere with his career as a scientist, usually is described by a seven letter reference to his genealogy by Murphy's staunch supporters.

Whatever the case, every available sign points to Murphy becoming a candidate in the near future and the sad fact is that if he loses it will probably be for the wrong reasons and the same is true if he wins.

BART's costly art

Editor, The Times: Who authorized Bart officials to spend over $100,000 for works of art in the S.F. Embarcadero station out of an established fund that is partly constituted by the property and sales taxes imposed on me and the other thousands of Bart three-county taxpayers?

If Bart were operating with a surplus, I might say "fine" but, as it stands, it is not! The District has had financial difficulties ever since 1966 and at present is contemplating a raise in fares, fees for parking, curtailing feeder-bus services in the East Bay, unable to provide night and weekend operation, and Lord knows what else!

Monies provided by our taxes whether direct, from Sacramento or Federal aid is not coming from some bottomless pit! Perhaps you or some of your readers more knowledgeable than I can suggest some way of at least putting a damper on such low-priority items in behalf of the overburdened taxpayer.

Bernie Gerton's note

To The Times: I have been trying to figure out what to do for an encore after my recent heart attack, which miraculously resulted in my companions extricating me through an incredible set of circumstances, and getting me the proper medical treatment in time. I can only repeat what old fishermen say, which is that the Lord does not subtract your time spent fishing from your normal life span, and perhaps that is why he gave me a second chance!

Certain interesting thoughts ran through my mind as I lay on the trail and felt that I might be dying. No panorama of past events flashed through my head, just a mild regret that I would not be able to do so many things I had planned, and most of all that I would not be able to hold my precious wife and tell her how much I love her and how much she had always meant to me. I thought also of things I could have said or done to ease a pain or to encourage a discouraged soul. From now on, such gestures will not be postponed!

I have been overwhelmed by the tremendous outpouring of love and concern by phone, telegram, mail, flowers, and personal visitation. I really cannot think about it without getting all choked up, and I want to thank everyone for their good wishes.

Lying in bed for two weeks and reflecting on my adventure leads me to the conclusion that the simple pleasures are best — enjoying just plain, everyday living, loving and cherishing family and friends, and being more tolerant and understanding.

Fortunately, my doctors say that if I follow a strict regimen for six months or more, I may be better than ever. Although I am not one inclined to follow orders too much, I surely intend to follow this one, because that fishing still looks mighty good to me!

Revitalizing downtown

Editor, The Times:
(Reply to Warren Harding)

You've had your finger on the political pulse of Pleasanton for a long time, Warren, and I understand that you are one of the original instigators of the Pleasanton Redevelopment Plan. I can understand your concern with Revitalizing Downtown and improving traffic circulation etc. — that's been needed for the 25 years that I've lived here. I also remember a few years back when YOU were the one who cast the deciding vote not to put traffic lights on Main Street because it would destroy the aesthetics of our fair city... how do you propose to retain the old town by tearing down buildings to extend new streets and refurbishing existing buildings with new facades...?

To about retain the old town, wouldn't it be wiser to bypass the downtown core with encircling or connector streets to carry through-traffic around the town and concentrate on more revitalization of the existing old buildings...?

How about extending a thoroughfare from Hopyard Rd. to Stanley and on to First Street along the Arroyo? If former City Fathers hadn't put so many obstacles before new industries wanting to locate in Pleasanton, we would already have many streets and roads around the perimeter of the town like the ones built by Reynold Johnson for the VW Complex and Chlorox. Wouldn't Six Flags Over Calif. have put a couple of overpasses to 680? Wouldn't Kodak and Johnson and Johnson have built streets on the southside of Bern where they wanted to locate? And last but not least, wouldn't the gravel companies have paid for all kinds of improvements if Pleasanton had asked a long time ago for 10 cents on a ton of gravel passing thru the town?

There is still another issue pending... You have the support of the Environmental Impact Group now and even the Gravel Giants are not going to run over EIR, so how about... a deal with Kaiser and the other gravel companies to refill the pits with debris from anywhere they want to ship it via railroad tracks that they build and which will also accommodate Bart Trains... Pleasanton can collect a fee for every trainload of trash deposited and use this source of revenue to achieve all the improvements we so sorely need.

So, Warren, if you can use your influence with the city fathers to make up their cotton-pickin' minds to abandon their crippled brain-child (PRA) and shift into high gear, you might all be rated as famous men on next century's tapes of time!

round the town

The Supreme Court of the land has ruled that an occasional spanking in the schools is acceptable. "When all else fails," the justices say.

I have dispatched a copy of this decision to St. Agnes School in Moose Jaw, Sask. Not that it will change the long-standing policies at good old St. Ag. But it might give the faculty therein a sense of comfort, to know that the United States of America — which is of course the source of all great findings — has now agreed, officially, with corporal punishment in the classroom.

I discovered this particular scholastic regimen at a very tender age. It was on my tenderest parts that the good sisters at St. Agnes Grammar School applied the very latest punitive measures. In point of fact, those measures had not changed much over the years.

"Your leather strap is somewhat the worse for wear," I once reminded Mother Loretta, smilingly. Mother Loretta was not amused.

I cannot in truth recall when that most awesome of school principals was ever amused. Kindly yes, on occasion. Sympathetic even, to our legitimate lament. But smiling? — never!

Mother Loretta was a person of generous proportions, on anyone's scale. From the vantage point of an errant fifth grader, she was downright huge. Nine feet tall, or better. With shoulders that blocked out the sky, and a girth to block any thought of escape. Among her other duties, Mother Loretta was acknowledged as the chief disciplinarian at St. Agnes. I always suspected it was a role she relished.

I do not pretend that we weren't worthy of such attention. Truth is, we were a bunch of hellions. Especially on the Boys Side of the campus. Sometimes the boys wound up on the Girls Side, and that's when Mother Loretta would have to work overtime.

Hindsight tells me that there was greater opportunity for corporal punishment in the schools of that era, than is afforded in today's halls of learning. For one thing, each and every classroom was equipped with a large, flat, strong ruler. This weapon was a constant invitation to the teacher to administer a quick smack, without prior warning, and often, I suspected, without reason. (Today's measuring sticks, when available, are made of flimsier stuff. One good whack and the ruler breaks. That is why cost-conscious superintendents are opposed to punishing students.)

As Chief Disciplinarian, Mother Loretta afforded herself a special weapon. It was a fine piece of leather, tapered at one end to permit a firm grip, but fanning out to assure the broadest application of force at the most responsive places. As noted earlier, the Loretta strap displayed the wear of ten thousand heroic battles. Every one a victory.

A further inducement to these punitive measures was the cloakroom. Every classroom had such an addition, as long as the classroom was wide. Therein was stored all the coats and mittens and overshoes of a typical class on a typical winter's day... which was nine-tenths of each school year.

The cloakroom also served as a handy meeting place for errant scholar and irate teacher. "I'll meet you in the cloakroom" was an invitation you dared not decline.

The cloakroom was windowless. It smelled of 40 pairs of wet overshoes, and 40 damp coats. A single light bulb hung from the ceiling by a slender cord. An extension of that cord invited you to turn off the light, or hang yourself, depending on the severity of your crime, and your own sense of guilt.

WHOMP! It wasn't just the sting of that strap, but the lecture that always accompanied each blow. WHOMP! "...and do you realize now you did a very BAD thing?" WHOMP! The message was as enduring as the pain. Frankly, as discipline goes, it was an effective combination.

In the enlightened eighth decade of the 20th century, the Supreme Court suggests that parental guidance may be desirable in determining a school's spanking policies. We had no such guidance, in those good old days, and were probably better off for it.

"Guess what?" my older brother would scream even before he had gained full entry into our home. "Johnnie got the strap today from Mother Loretta!"

If this word reached my father, the response was immediate and unvarying.

"What devilment have you been up to now?" he would demand. And before I could respond, he would be unhitching his razor strop from the wall, warming up his pitching arm for his very own performance.

Given the relative extinction of the razor strop, the passing of the cloakroom, and the replacement of the sturdy measuring stick with a plastic pocket calculator, it is a wonder that corporal punishment in the schools is able to survive at all. Personally, I think the Supreme Court acted a full generation too late.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Ask Harry Querner, (which I have not done) the genial and sometimes explosive former proprietor of Fremont's International kitchen and currently host at the Lorelei in the same city, and he will tell you John D. Murphy is going to run for reelection to the First District Supervisor's seat in Alameda County.

The same question to Frank Ivaldi, proprietor of the Sunol Valley Golf Course and head of the Hayward based East Bay Excavating Company, and his reply will be even more emphatically affirmative.

Believe me, they are only small voices in the crowd of powerful and politically influential people who insist that Murphy will seek reelection to the seat he has retained for more than 15 years.

The only silent voice in the multitude of Murphy supporters is that of Murphy himself and, to some extent, his politically wise administrative assistant, Rudy Dettenrieder.

Rudy knows his way around South County political circles. He is a former mayor of Hayward and has handled a lot of campaigns other than his own.

Rudy has had only one loser according to his figures, a health, Murphy looks at the world with the wide open blue eyes of an intelligent child who would rather laugh than take life seriously.

He could, if he so desired, kiss babies with the best of them if he so desired.

But, though he is by no means a loner, Murphy prefers to keep himself surrounded by the old friends he has formed through the years and, whether he does it consciously or not, encircles himself in them like a ring of protective armor.

He attends public events because it is his duty. He chats and laughs with his friends because he enjoys them.

The slightly bashful supervisor, and he will probably pop me in the nose for saying that next time I see him, has without intending to, made himself a mystery man to many of his constituents. With the help of folks like Miller, he has become an ogre to others. But he knows his job and performs it as capably as could any other man.

To say otherwise is distorting the facts.

To challenge him on the issues is another matter. Any man in the First District seat is fair game on a lot of fronts.

To be challenged on those issues is something he must expect. I am sure he expects it as part of his job.

The low blows are another matter and could be part of the reason for his hesitation along with other matters.

Whatever the case I am sure now the hesitation is over. What is left is only a matter of timing Querner, Ivaldi and their friends know what they are talking about, I am sure of that.

The only question is, when will Murphy join the conversation?

not our great expert. His first two discards were spades and then only then did he get into a club.

South cashed dummy's last spade and East let another club go. The ace-king and queen of hearts and ace of clubs were cashed leaving West with the jack of hearts and 10 of diamonds while East was holding on to the queen and 10 of clubs.

South knew where the high diamond was. He didn't know who had the jack of hearts and who had the queen of clubs. He led a second club from dummy. East played the 10 and South decided that East had started with four clubs to the 10. He rose with the king and another slam had bit the dust.

Ask the Jacobys

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Anyone can look at the hands and see that in spite of the bad diamond break and the loss of the spade finesse, South can take a club finesse and make his slam. Then how did expert South wind up in the soup?

It was because an even better player sat East. East won the first spade and led the suit back. South started after diamonds and East had to make three discards. The average good player would chuck one club right away;

A Maryland reader wants to know the value of the old adage, "When in doubt, lead trumps". It is worth very little. A better one is: "When not in doubt lead trumps". 'BART' funding formula completely cockeyed' — Bort

The formula used to divert Alameda County's $490,000 in Transportation Development Act monies to add evening service to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District is "completely cockeyed," Alameda County Supervisor and Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC) representative Joseph Bort charged yesterday.

Reacting to the news that his county's contribution amounts to 40.8 percent of the $1.2 million allocation and that neighboring Contra Costa will pony up 41.7 percent while San Francisco's portion comes to 17.5 percent, Bort said: "It appears to me our policy is totally false."

In allocating a total $1.6 million the MTC found out the proportions are determined by the number of people in proximity to BART's rail lines.

If a city has a parking lot, however, the entire city's population is counted as BART rail users.

San Francisco's sole parking facility is at the end of the line in bordering Daly City — untaxed San Mateo County.

While the funds already have been collected and are being held by the MTC from the half-cent sales tax charged in the three Bay Area counties, Bort is still upset.

San Francisco's Municipal Railway "is a good feeder system," he charged, "and gives 100 percent of the people in the city access to

"By your formula," he told the MTC's man in charge of Transportation Development Act monies, Matt Gage, "100 percent of the area with no feeder bus service can be charged, while the 100 percent of the people who have access to BART pay only 17 percent. It's completely cockeyed."

"Just to enlighten Mr. Bort's theory with a little reality," San Francisco representative Jack Crowley retorted, "85 percent of the people using BART in San Francisco depart at Daly City."

"I'm aware of that," Bort shot back, "and I think San Mateo ought to contribute some more."

The formula, according to Gage and MTC Executive Director Paul Watt, is set in the legislation, and is the same used in Daly City and the AC Transit District's dealings with San Francisco.

Bort, however, is not satisfied and introduced a motion directing MTC's staff to present a complete report on the formula used to allocate TDA funds.

"There's lots of discretion in how to implement that law," he charged.

While MTC's move to give BART the $1.6 million passed with "not a very positive sounding 'aye,'" in the words of commissioner Louise Giersch, Bort's motion was more heartily endorsed.
